Park Theater seat-quel

TPTT Board Members John McCormick and Tracey Farrell

Lafayette's iconic Park Theater is prioritizing reuse during their renovation.

Originally designed in 1941, the theater has been closed since 2005. In 2018, the City established the Park Theater Trust (TPTT), an all-volunteer community task force, to work on a plan to come up with solutions to get the site up and running. TPTT successfully purchased the Park building in December 2021.

TPTT is finding ways to recycle key elements of the existing Park at every turn, restoring the iconic neon marquee and tower; the charming sidewalk box office; stunning Art Deco sconces; and the vintage Wagner cast metal marquee letters. The letters were refurbished in 2024 as an Eagle Scout project by Clark Laskey of Lafayette Troop 200. It's a real community effort!

Reuse efforts don't stop there. TPTT recently sold 100 of the rose velvet seats to a Hollywood staging business for an event. Afterwards, the chairs will go to a prop shop for industry rentals.

When the theater reopens, it will include two theaters, a community room and a rooftop terrace lounge. Organizers plan to offer a robust daily calendar of movies and live music, as well as rental opportunities. Their goal is to reopen the theater in 2025, just in time for the Park Theater's 84th birthday.

Stop Junk Mail!

Reduce unwanted junk mail sent to your home this holiday and election season:

- USPS recommends opting out of junk mail by going to DMAchoice.org to sign up to unsubscribe.
- You can also go to BayAreaRecycling.org/stop-junk-mail for a list of resources for stopping junk mail, catalogs, spam email and more!

Remember, paper envelopes with windows, magazines, paper documents, and shiny junk mail are all accepted in your blue recycling bin.

Hello 🗋️ I'm a talking recycling bin! Text me your item and I'll tell you which bin it goes in.

DON'T TRASH YOUR HHW

As you make room for new gadgets this holiday season, make sure your household hazardous waste (HHW) does not end up in the landfill bin. Items like household batteries can be dropped off at one of our local partner retail locations—check out the list of participating businesses on our website at RecycleSmart.org/HHW. If you have any e-waste, such as computers, tablets, TVs, etc., that you would like to get rid of, your property manager can schedule a pickup for a fee by contacting Republic Services at 925-685-4711.

Gourd Thinking!

Making a jack-o-lantern this Halloween? Get the most out of your pumpkin before it goes in your green organics cart:

- Bake it: After you've carved your pumpkin, separate out, bake and dress pumpkin seeds for a sweet or savory treat.
Tip: If you separate out your seeds on newspaper or a paper bag, you can compost the leftover pumpkin "guts" and paper.
- Craft it: Hollow out your pumpkin and fill it with bird seed for a festive snack-o-lantern. Or add edible googly eyes with frosting for frightfully delightful decor!
- Compost it: Pumpkins make a great alternative to fertilizer. Help your parents cut up your pumpkin and add them to your food scraps container or worm compost bin—remember to remove candles before composting!
- Keep it: Didn't carve your pumpkin? Use it as a centerpiece for your Thanksgiving holiday!

When you're done with your pumpkin creations, you can put them in your green organics cart. Go to RecycleSmart.org/newsletter-fall-2024 for more ideas!

Keep it spooky and sustainable

Halloween is full of frightful fun, however, all of the single-use holiday decor and costumes often create a ton of excess waste—now that's scary!

Here are some ideas for you to try out this year to reduce unnecessary waste or consumption:

- Upcycle old costumes, or better yet, start the festivities early with a fun Halloween costume swap with friends or neighbors! You can also check out websites like Facebook Marketplace or OfferUp for costumes.
- Use household items as costume props (we're looking at you, broom!).

- Go to your local thrift store to get pieces you can wear beyond the season (you can also donate your costume afterwards).
- Get creative with face paint and makeup instead of buying a plastic mask.
- Make your own decorations, like bats out of egg cartons and construction paper, spider web out of cotton or hemp string or ghost lanterns out of milk jugs.

Now that's something humans and zombies can love! Happy haunting!

Holiday Tree Collection

The holidays will be here and gone before you know it. When it comes to tree collection time, remember that trees must be free of tinsel, ornaments, lights, stands and other decorations before placing your tree near the garbage enclosure, or your property's designated tree collection location during the scheduled collection week without blocking bins and carts.

Flocked trees—or trees with fake snow—should be cut and placed inside your black landfill bin. Please contact your property owner or manager if you have any questions, or you can visit our website at RecycleSmart.org/2025treecollection

Bin sorting: Holiday edition

One of the best ways we can prevent waste this holiday season is to use items like washable and reusable plates, dishes, cups, cutlery, cloth napkins and dish towels. For everything else, check out our holiday sorting guide below. If you're not sure about an item that's not shown, go to RecycleSmart.org for more detailed lists.

HOME COMPOSTING WORKSHOPS

On November 2, we will be hosting our final composting workshop of 2024: Vermicomposting and Bin Building. Vermicomposting, or using worms to break down organic waste, is a great method for any household type, especially for those with smaller spaces without a lot of yard trimmings. Go to RecycleSmart.org/workshops today to register for free to learn how to turn food scraps and other organics into a nutrient-rich soil amendment for potted plants.

Start gathering your home composting supplies! Purchase a home compost bin—residents in RecycleSmart's service area can get a bin for 50% off! Get your coupon at RecycleSmart.org/compostbins

My Tip

Delicious Zero-Waste Decor

This newsletter's My Tip comes from RecycleSmart's very own Janna M., who made some showstopping decor out of fruits and vegetables!

For my grandson's birthday party, we dressed up fruit and veggie platters to be characters of his favorite action heroes: Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles!

It was easy:

- For the face, I chose one green fruit or vegetable for each character: green grapes, celery, honeydew and cucumber.
- To make the masks, I used other colored fruits and vegetables that went with each turtle: red cherry tomatoes, blueberries, purple grapes and carrots.
- Then, I used different dips and olives to make the eyes, and used blueberries and black olives for the smiles.

Ta-da! A fun centerpiece that tastes as good as it looks, with no waste at the end!
